SCOWCROFT INSTITUTE OF INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

The Scowcroft Institute of International Affairs is a research institute named in honor of Lt. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, USAF (Ret.), whose long and distinguished career in public service included serving as National Security Advisor for Presidents Gerald Ford and George H. W. Bush. The Institute’s core mission is to foster and disseminate policy-oriented research on international affairs by supporting faculty and student research, hosting international speakers and major scholarly conferences, and providing grants to outside researchers to use the holdings of the Bush Library.

PROGRAMS

The Institute supports Texas A&M faculty conducting policy-relevant research on international affairs and capstone projects carried out by Bush School students studying international affairs, and supervises grant programs that assist scholars doing research at the George Bush Presidential Library. It also hosts Army Fellows in residence as part of the Army War College’s Senior Service College Fellows Program. The Institute conducts a robust program of international speakers and major scholarly conferences, including the monthly International Affairs Seminars, which bring nationally prominent scholars and practitioners of international affairs to the Bush School. Other important activities include the Lenore and Francis Humphrys International Speaker Series, the Moss Lecture Series, the Ansary Foreign Policy Conference, the Lone Star National Security Forum, and the “Meet the Author” Series.

RESOURCES

An endowment provided by Lt. Gen. Scowcroft supports research done by Bush School and other Texas A&M faculty. Donors such as the Humphrys, the Mosses, and Mr. Ansary make possible their respective events. Additional endowments for the Institute will enable vital operational support, new research and speaker series, student capstones, and the ability to host visiting scholars and practitioners.

LEADERSHIP

Ambassador-in-Residence and Senior Lecturer Larry Napper directs the Institute, which is also advised by an external board of prominent leaders and a campus-based advisory board.
